Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 25 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Showery for many but gradually turning a little warmer.

Today:
Patchy rain in the north and east will be replaced by sunny spells and heavy showers - particularly for northern England. Fewer showers elsewhere with sunny spells, though rain will affect Cornwall and parts of Devon during afternoon. Remaining cool.

Tonight:
Showers dying out for most though a few persisting for central England and East Anglia with more rain arriving for east Scotland and northeast England. Chilly in places.

Wednesday:
Rain in the northeast breaking up into showers, some heavy but less so than Monday and Tuesday. Staying dry for the west and south and turning a little warmer here.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Many places dry with sunny spells. Some rain likely to affect the west later on Thursday and perhaps during Friday. Warmer than recently and feeling pleasant in sunshine.
